HAMPTON HIGH SCHOOL

FOREWORD

We, the staff, in an effort to portray one chapter in the life of our student body, submit this annual to the students and friends of the school. We sincerely hope that it accomplishes its full purpose and that it will ever be a means of bringing back memories and thoughts of our high school years.

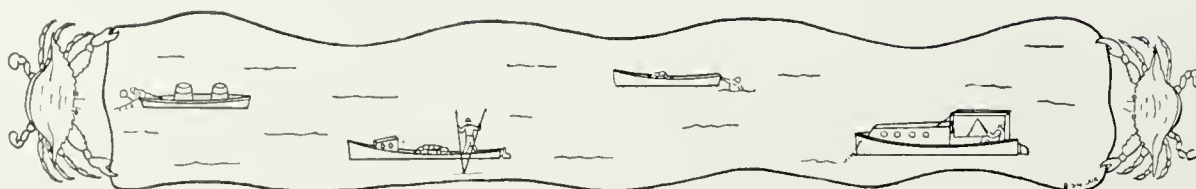

MISS MADELINE JONES

MRS. MARGUERITE M. J. STEVENS

DEDICATION

To the sponsors of the senior class who have willingly undertaken the responsibility of guiding the seniors through their final year, we gratefully dedicate this annual.

A Cigarette

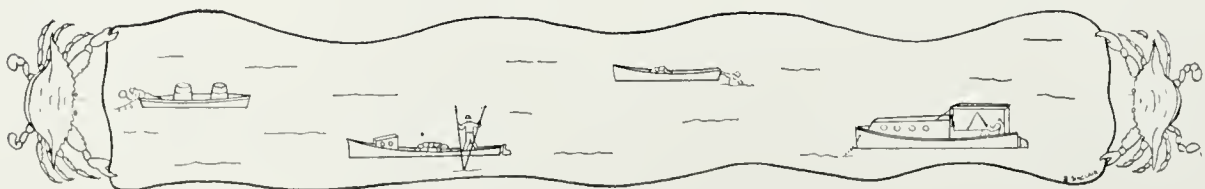

A cigarette between the lip,
A cigarette with match at tip,
A light from school to give a start
And then we smoke the school day part.

A cigarette between the fingers,
A deep inhale and smoke that lingers,
To rise and form in misty blue
The things in life we'll have to do.

A cigarette that's burning low,
With every breath a weaker glow,
A kindly thing to sit and dream
Now that we're the ebbing stream.

A cigarette that's burned and rent
So school life itself is spent,
But be not grieved—it burns no more
For we still have the after glow.

—ANNETTE GRIFFIN

History of the Class of 1935

September 1931 found us walking proudly in the direction of Hampton High School. We had finished grammar school the preceding June and now, ahead of us, were our high school careers. We walked proudly up to the school, but our confidence soon deserted us when upper-classmen began calling us "rats" and putting us through experiences which we would well remember.

We soon got together for the purpose of organizing and electing officers. After much active campaigning the officers for our first high school year were elected as follows: President, Jack Love; Vice-President, Evelyn Gammage; Secretary, Jewel Yates; and Treasurer, Neil Wood. Our motto was "Fresh and Green" and the class colors were green and white.

Following the election of officers our class settled down to real work and began to learn the true meaning of school spirit. We presented several programs in general assembly and tried hard to let higher classmen know who we were and what we could do. It was during this year that our school was enlarged, giving us a new auditorium, a new gym, and some additional classrooms.

September 1932 found us entering the school as sophomores. We had regained some of our confidence by this time and could look down on the incoming Freshmen with an air of superiority. Our class helped to take care of the "rats" and let them know that there were students in the school who had taken notice of them. Many of the members of our class were by this time beginning to show their interest and ability in the various sports and many were becoming interested in the various other activities of the school.

Our officers for this year were: President, Joe Carpenter; Vice-President, Miriam Swan; Secretary, Jewel Yates; and Treasurer, Neil Wood. The motto was "Not At The Top, But Climbing," and the class colors were purple and white.

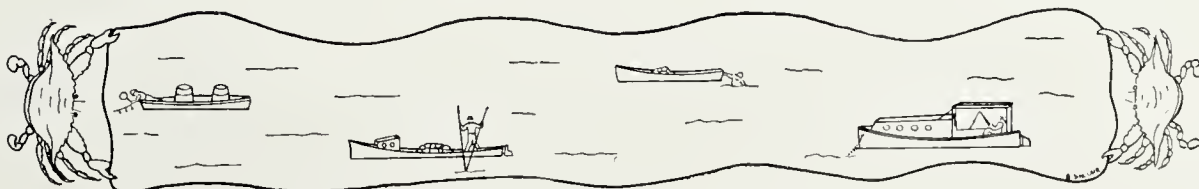

The following September we entered the school as juniors and continued to climb toward our goal—graduation. We now looked forward to the time when we would be seniors and on the home stretch. As we advanced in our classes school life took on a brighter atmosphere and became more interesting. The leaders for this year were: President, Charles Maddox; Vice-President, Jack Fuller; and Secretary and Treasurer, Anne Lewis.

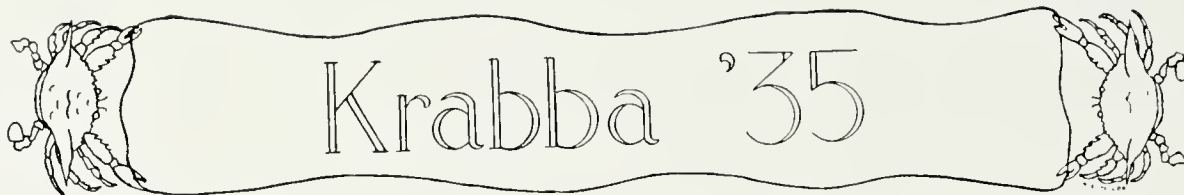

During this year several plays were given by the junior class. The purpose of these plays was to raise money for the Junior-Senior dance which was given by the Junior class in honor of the Senior class of 1934.

In September 1934 we entered school as seniors and began the last year of our high school careers. The class had grown smaller by this time as some had dropped out along the way and others had left to attend school elsewhere, but those of us who remained did our best to make this, our last year, the best of all. In October we elected the officers for our Senior class. These officers are: President, Neil Wood; Vice-President, Harrington Cochran; Secretary, Jane Sinclair; and Treasurer, Diantha Raymond. "Completus Tamen Incipiens" is the class motto and has been the motto of every Senior class since 1925.

Now, the time has come when we, the class of 1935, must bid farewell to Hampton High School and we trust that our successors may find these experiences as enjoyable as we have.

—WADE MYERS,
Class Historian.

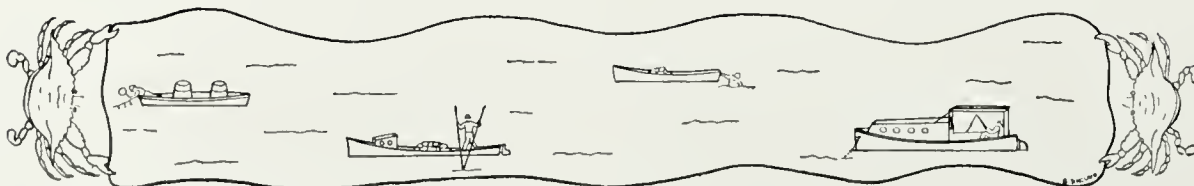

Last Will and Testament

All good things must come to an end; likewise the high school career of the Class of 1935 is drawing to a close. To the coming seniors we wish to leave our dignity, senior privileges and the best of good luck in their scholastic undertakings.

The following are individual bestowals:

1. Robert Detwiler and Gene Trucblood leave their feminine ways to Owen Smith.
2. Jack Kelly leaves a box of toothpicks to be distributed among the Junior class.
3. Valentine Fullman, Stephen Knowles and Otto Horstmann leave their artistic abilities to any capable Junior.
4. Joe Carpenter, Lorraine Guy, Philip Fraser and Charles Seigler finally leave.
5. James Fraser, Raymond Brittingham, Charles Maddox, Neil Wood and Billy Robinson leave the football team handicapped.
6. A love affair—Al Miller and Ann Hardy leave hand-in-hand.
7. Jane Sinclair and Shirlee Jenkins leave to compete as doubles for Mae West.
8. Gloria Rose, Mildred Tieman and Elsie White leave their chewing gum all over the place.
9. Donald Getzinger Van Horn leaves Judy Hickey his middle name.
10. Charles Gerrity, Norman Tullington, Frank Welch, and Milton Beimler leave their seats in the auditorium to the coming Phoebus Seniors.
11. C. L. Moseley leaves Mrs. Stevens wondering who will be her next pest in Math. class.
12. Joe Peake leaves his track record to Frank Bader.
13. John Dickinson leaves for Michigan.
14. Jacque Mingee and Pauline Gunther leave their knowledge of acting to Bailey Rollins and Irving Fuller.
15. Another love affair—Bill Cole and Helen Gage leave together.
16. And still another—Mildred Luther leaves Joe Joinville.
17. Elizabeth Herman leaves her height to Jewell Yates.
18. Annabel Johnson, Betsie Johnson, Frances Smith, Frances Woodley, Alice Wallace, and Eleanor Lewis depart for Fox Hill.
19. Rose Mary Dooley and Leona Corbett leave a little excess weight to Jane Winne.
20. Lucy Baker leaves her feminine appeal to Jackie Copeland.
21. Elizabeth Bradley leaves with her diploma in her hand and her heart in V. P. I.
22. Marguerite Darden leaves the Krabba with a little less noise.
23. Miriam Vick, Helen Fuller and Nancy Beattie leave the girls basketball team.
24. Kitty Phillips leaves Joe Braig and Tom Cramer.
25. Diantha Raymond, Laurence Wood, and Wade Myers leave fine scholastic records.
26. Pollyanna Kelly leaves Mr. Gardner minus a customer.
27. Dorothy Obrey leaves her songs to inspire the Juniors.
28. Howard Taylor leaves Dot Trice.
29. Annette Griffin leaves her poetic gifts to the coming Senior poet.
30. Amelia Lewis and Anne Lewis leave room 309 without a guard.
31. Rosser Mitchell and Norris Martin leave the basketball team.
32. Edwin Windler and Willard Cardwell leave their business like manner to Libby Wilson and Katy Sheehan.
33. Frank Whitley leaves his two French classes.
34. Wilson Wright, Bernard Rawlins, Homer Riggins, Chris Steger and Raymond Snow leave their shop work.

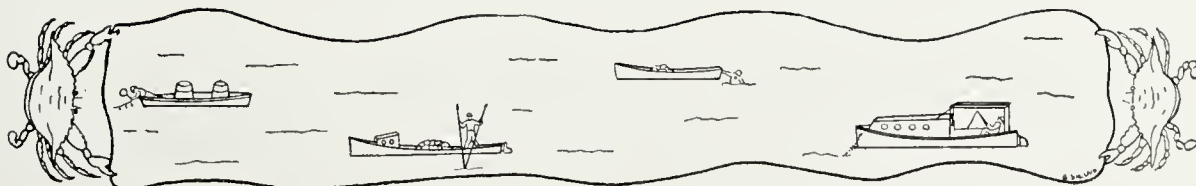

Krabba '35

35. Kenneth Bransford and Eugene Goldstein leave Mrs. Stevens's orchestra.
36. Edward Evans and Wilton Born leave their places in the Chemistry lab.
37. Kenneth Taylor leaves his school spirit to Waverly Wornom.
38. Charles Christy prepares for V. P. I.
39. Harrington Cochran leaves all of his feminine admirers.
40. Lee Smith leaves his many study halls.
41. Rowena Rogers and Thelma Irwin, two friends, leave together.
42. Charles Dichtel leaves his diligence and love of work to Billy Scott; he needs it.
43. J. B. Bain leaves his noontime job at Mann's.
44. Ira Ewell leaves us wondering if he is any relation to Primo Carnera.
45. Irene Andrews, Grace Tennis, Mae Baxley and Fairy Stiles leave as quietly as they entered.
46. Roy Price and George McGehee, two blonds of the old school, are leaving for the summer.
47. Milton Quinn, Frank Roberts and Harold Howard will leave not to return next fall to listen and laugh at Mr. Lewis's jokes.
48. Robert Fogleman leaves his memory to Marshall Taylor. It's in good condition having never been used.
49. Ruby Baggett, Dorothy Gammack, Doris Cooper, Elizabeth Harper, Margaret Hicks and Alberta Ketchum depart for a good time.
50. Mary Elliott and Daisy Ellis leave their make-up abilities to the dramatic club.
51. Hudgins West, Sarah Cross, Adcle Cockey, Frances Wynne and Carl Thomas leave us knowing little about them.
52. Frances Collier leaves Miss Hope and the library.
53. Betty Bond leaves memories of bookkeeping to Miss Darden.
54. Betty Sinclair leaves to ride horseback for the rest of the summer.
55. Selma West, Anna Wharton and Alma Woodward will leave to ride horseback; but on the Merry-go-round at Buckroe.
56. Billy Johnson leaves his captivating grin and a mop of hair greater than that of Charles Maddox to Bill Kelly.
57. William Shaw leaves his good nature to Neal Hughes.
58. George Askew leaves the head of the class roll.
59. Elizabeth Clark leaves for a good time with Albert Joynes.
60. Billy Moore leaves in his own happy-go-lucky manner.
61. Alfred Hughes leaves many young ladies wishing they had his complexion.
62. James Lee leaves Miss Sanders and the geometry class.
63. Ozelle Turner leaves her younger brother, Elmer, to carry on the family traditions in Hampton.
64. Flossie Goodrich leaves Irene Charles.
65. Ella Hobbs leaves us wondering if she gets a thrill out of seeing her name on a loaf of bread.
66. Mildred Laws leaves her many jokes.
67. Helen and Edith Ferrell leave as two sisters should.
68. Eva Drummond and Mary Robbins leave Mr. Gardner's lunch tables.
69. Mary Brittingham, Marguerite Carter, Elizabeth Cox and Chaunca Franklin leave their happy memories of Hampton to Elsie Lee Davis, Mary Vick, and Laura Johnson.
70. Mae Linsig leaves many rumors in the school.
71. William Schell leaves with his little friend, William Laws.

Drawn up in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty-five at Hampton, Virginia.

WILLIAM SCHELL,
Executor.

Prophecy of the Senior Class of 1935

I woke with a start, dressed in a rush, hurried to the office, and then remembered—today was the celebration of the firm's silver anniversary and the boss had declared a holiday for all of the firm.

I started out, when all at once a vaguely familiar figure passed. Was it, it was Mr. Thorpe! Could it possibly be ten years since I left Hampton High School?

I stopped at a nice looking restaurant for breakfast and was treated to another shock. There stood Gloria Rose with a waitress' apron. Questions poured from my lips. She laughed and then explained that the restaurant was owned by Raymond Brittingham, and that some of the other waitresses were Jacque Mingee, Ozelle Turner, Alice Wallace, and Daisy Ellis. I leisurely finished my breakfast, started to pay for the meal, and found myself staring at Grace Tennis, the cashier.

I sauntered down the street and stopped in front of a large power plant that was being erected by the firm of N. Wood and L. Wood. N. Wood turned out to be Neil, our old senior president. He was in charge of the construction work. L. Wood was Laurence, who was in charge of all the electrical work. Chris Steger, electrical foreman, had Bernard Rawlins, Bill Cole, Homer Riggins, Raymond Snow, and James Lee working hard, installing large turbine engines. Roy Price had just been fired for being late, three days in a row, without an excuse. Frank Roberts, knowing of his value, immediately engaged him as a service man in his electrical supplies store.

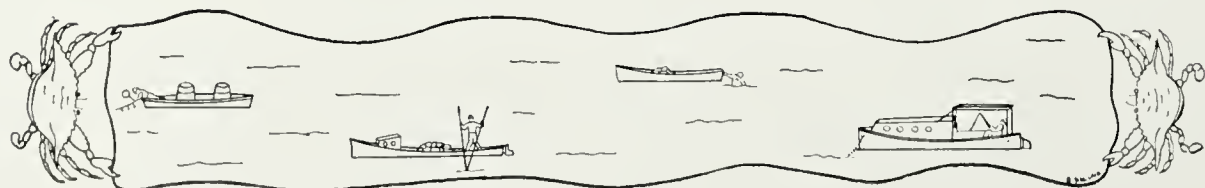

I followed Frank to his store and found he had as his secretary, Valentine Fullman. Alma Woodward was one of the clerks and I saw George McGehee working in the stockroom.

Leaving there I wandered on down the street until I came to a newspaper stand where I saw several copies of "Sportania," edited by Alfred Hughes, and "The New Times," edited by Loraine Guy. I became very much interested in an article written by Diantha Raymond stating that "Every Woman Should Carve A Career." The opposite article, "Every Woman Should Hook A Husband," was written by Mrs. A. S. Miller, formerly Ann Hardy. She is the wife of Al Miller, former All-American halfback at V. P. I.

In "News from Hampton, Virginia," I saw that Miss Amelia Lewis, instructor in the Latin department, and Miss Frances Collier, instructor in the math department, are planning a tour of Canada immediately after the close of school.

Suddenly I looked up and there stood Sarah Cross, the news clerk, giving me a dirty look, and seeming to ask me if I wanted to buy something or was just reading everything in the store without a library card.

As I walked out of the store reading an article "How To Put On Weight," by Elizabeth Herman, I bumped into Selma West and Marguerite Darden, the town's two most popular dress models who refuse to be tied down by a husband. I asked them where they were going and they said they were hurrying to get some groceries before the A. & P. closed. Having nothing else to do, I went with them to see if I could be of any assistance. I went in the store and found that Joe Peake was the store manager and Billy Robinson was manager of the meat department. While in there, I heard a terrible noise and looking around, I saw Mrs. Albert Joynes, formerly Elizabeth Clark, and Mrs. Ernest Houston, formerly Eleanor Lewis, arguing over who first saw the extra firm head of cabbage they both wanted to buy.

Krabba '35

Feeling tired and thirsty, I went across the street to the Royal Billiard Parlor, W. Cardwell, prop., where I saw Jack Kelly and Frank Whitley serving the thirsty from behind the bar. In front of the room I found William Schell, the singing barber, cutting the hair of William Albert Johnson, manager of the world's champions, the New York Hankies. Billy, who works at "Still Here" in the winter stated that prospects for next year's team were rather good.

I saw Rosser Mitchell, one of the town's leading young business men, getting his shoes shined by William Laws, the bootblack. Rosser said that he had found business so prosperous that he had added Elizabeth Cox to his secretarial staff that already has such competent members as Ella Hobbs, Fairy Stiles, and Anna Wharton.

I left the pool room and meandered along the street. In the crowd I saw Mrs. Edward Kraus, the former Mae Linsig, and Mrs. John Green, the former Elizabeth Bradley.

On a large poster I saw an advertisement of Grand Opera, featuring Miss Dorothy Obrey. Miss Obrey will be accompanied by Miss Eva Lake Drummond, violinist, and Miss Anne Lewis, pianist.

Feeling in need of entertainment I went to the new Bioli Theater where Shirlee Jenkins, the Wampas baby star, and Joe Carpenter, the man who took the place of Gable in Hollywood, were featured in "Hollywood Hotcha." On a plaque in the lobby I noticed the names of Harold Howard, architect, and Otto Horstmann, interior decorator.

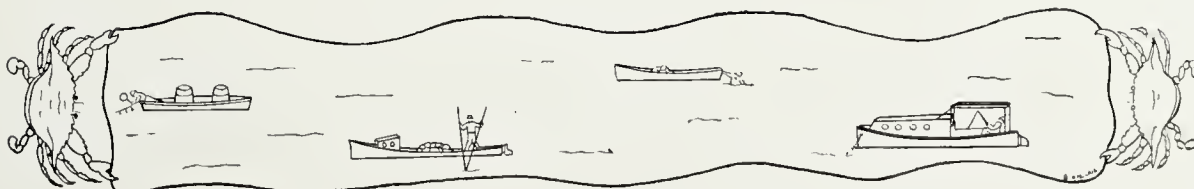

I went into the theater and was shown a seat by one of the ushers, Eddie Evans. Before the lights went out I saw one of the movie's most militant censors, the Rev. Mr. Robert Fogleman. Milly Luther and Thelma Irwin sat behind him, eating peanuts and laughing at the preacher's solemn expression.

In the news reel I saw a picture of Dorothy Gammack, the national president of the D. A. R. Then there flashed on the screen the pictures of the Misses Leona Corbett and Lucy Baker, intrepid missionaries who recently returned from revolt-torn China. Next came a picture of the distinguished scientist, Dr. John Dickinson, who recently discovered a new serum for the prevention of scarlet fever. In this he was helped a great deal by his assistant, Miss Helen Gage. I enjoyed the main picture thoroughly. The part where the maid, Frances Smith, allowed the butler, Gene Trueblood, to kiss her, smiled, and then smacked him with a one-two to the cheek, was especially well acted.

I left the theater and went to the Quinn Hotel where I saw the prowling house detective, Norman Tullington, talking to the head porter, Frank Welch. I bought a bar of "Goodrich Goodies" at the lobby news stand where Mildred Tieman was presiding. I then went to the desk to inquire about Charlie Christy, business manager of the Bransford Balloon Corporation, and was informed by the clerk, Wade Myers, that I could find him in room 281. As I rode up in the elevator I thought I saw a familiar figure and when I stepped out I saw that the elevator girl was Mae Baxley.

I knocked at room 281 and was told to come in. I entered and there stood Kenneth Taylor, advertising manager, dictating to his private secretary, Helen Fuller. He explained that Christy was unable to come, but as reservations had been made, he came in Charlie's place. We had a good talk and I learned that Pauline Gunther had recently opened an apparel shop, specializing in spats.

I left there and went to the dining room where I ate my evening meal. My waitress was another schoolmate, Ruby Baggett. She greeted me with a smile and told me they were featuring Dooley's Delight, a delicious mixture of foods, known only to the creator, Rose Mary Dooley. After a most enjoyable meal I paid the cashier, Annette Griffin, and left the hotel. As I left I saw Jimmy Fraser, the well known gigolo, sneaking down the fire escape.

Krabba '35

I boarded a street car and found myself face to face with Ira Ewell, the conductor. On the car I saw Mary Brittingham, and Marguerite Carter, two hard working typists on their way home after a long day's work.

I got off at Dichtel's "Big Bad Wolf Night Club" and went inside where I met George Askew, pilot of the "Luxury Liner," crack transcontinental plane, designed by Stephen Knowles.

I checked my hat with the hat-check girl who was none other than Nancy Beattie. Then I walked inside where I noticed Mrs. Tom Cramer, formerly Kitty Phillips, sitting at a table near the dance floor. At a nearby table I saw Lieutenant Harrington Cochran with Marie Lamb. Ensign Billy Moore and Lieutenant C. L. Moseley were wandering around enjoying everything and missing nothing.

Norris Martin, master of ceremonies, introduced the floor show. The first number was a tap-dance by Charley Gerrity. Then in came the chorus, featuring the acrobatic antics of the Ferrell twins, Edith and Helen. The next and final number was a beautiful rendition of "Trees" by the renowned tenor, Milton Beimler.

The orchestra then struck up a fast piece and the floor was soon filled with dancers. In the orchestra I noticed Wilton Born, banjo, and Eugene Goldstein, saxophone. The cigarette girl, Betty Bond, came up and told me that Betty Sinclair was the designer of all the costumes used in the stage show. She also informed me that Wilson Wright was in charge of all the staging for the floor show. I noticed a great crush in one section of the dance floor and hurried to see the great attraction. It was only Jane Sinclair, getting her regular rush.

I saw Frances Woodley, the club hostess, all in a flurry. She told me that one of the chorus girls had just fainted. Just then Dr. Edwin Windler came up and I saw Frances give a sigh of relief. She knew the case was in the hands of a competent doctor.

I started walking home and on my way I bumped into Irene Andrews, Annabel Johnson, Chaunca Franklin, and Alberta Ketchum who were coming from a meeting of the Sit'n Chatter Club. As I passed through the heart of the town I saw one small shop that was still lighted. I peeped in and there was Pollyanna Kelly, in her pet shop, trying to sell Betsie Johnson a parrot. Rowena Rogers, a clerk, was disgustedly pointing a finger at a blue eagle as if to say, "The N. R. A. says forty-eight hours shall be the maximum working time for any clerk."

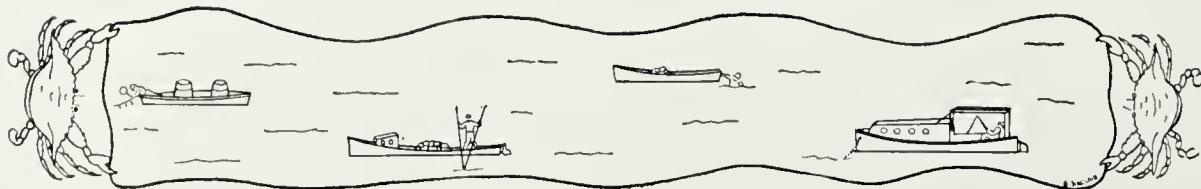

Next door I noticed a pawn shop. I looked in and there stood J. B. Bain trying to get a loan on some jeweled cuff links. The pawnbroker, Hudgins West, seemed very reluctant to give the amount asked for. On the next street corner a policeman, Carl Thomas, was arresting Lee Smith for disturbing the peace. The complainant, Miriam Vick, said she could stand his bass horn, but when he started a one-man band at midnight, that was too much. Mary Elliott, a neighbor of Lee's was insisting that the music was not disturbing the peace, but was full of real beauty. Mildred Laws, a waitress in a nearby all-night lunch-room, was frankly enjoying the spectacle. Elsie White, a reporter for the "Tribune" was quickly taking down all the facts.

Just before I came to my apartment I saw Elizabeth Harper, Margaret Hicks, Mary Robins, and Frances Wynne. They explained that they were on the early morning shift in the Runless Hosiery Mills.

When I entered the apartment I saw Doris Cooper, the new combination clerk and switchboard operator.

Before I went to bed I thought of a wonderful thing. By a quirk of fate I had seen all of my fellow classmates of old H. H. S.

The Garrick Dramatic Club of Hampton High School was founded April 15, 1932 by its present sponsors, R. E. T. Lewis, Miss Kathryn Pace, and Miss Margaret Patrick. The club derived its name from David Garrick, an eminent eighteenth century English actor. The requirements for membership in the club are scholarship, school spirit, and dramatics. Through the support of the faculty and student body of Hampton High, the Garrick Dramatic Club has produced many successful plays. Among these are: The Whole Town's Talking, The First Dress Suit, Highness, As You Like It, Second Childhood, The Thirtieth Day, The Valiant, Pierrot—His Play, The Trysting Place, and The Message from Khufu.

VIRGINIA'S LEADING ANNUAL ENGRAVERS

THIS BOOK

Will be treasured by you as a record of the golden days of youth; of events large and small that will be thus recalled in later years and always with delight; of friendships that will remain forever green.

It will be the magic door through which you need only to pass; to step from age into youth! To us whose privilege it was to have a large and pleasant part in its making, this book will always be a reminder of the many friendships that grew and multiplied in this building.

And so we extend to the Class our heartiest congratulations and to those of you whom we came to know best, Adios! Hasta la vista!

AN ORGANIZATION OF SKILLED CRAFTSMEN,
DESIGNERS, ARTISTS AND PHOTO-ENGRAVERS
RENDERING SUPERIOR PHOTO-ENGRAVING SERVICE.
DESIGNERS AND ENGRAVERS OF THE COMMODORE.
DESIGNERS AND ENGRAVERS OF THE KRABBA.

The practical side of Annual management, including advertising, selling, organization, and finance, is comprehensively covered in a series of Editorial and Business Management books called "Neco Craft," furnished free to Annual Executives. Secure "Neco" co-operation. We invite your correspondence.
